Since Broadcom and VMware announced our proposed combination, we've been busy speaking to VMware leadership, employees, customers and partners as we plan for this exciting next chapter. These conversations are only strengthening our confidence in the future of our combined business.

In a new blog post, Tom Krause, President of Broadcom Software Group, explains our approach to post-closing planning to best deliver on the companies' joint value proposition and help customers better meet the demands of the complex IT landscape. Among other highlights, he discusses how Broadcom is working in close coordination with VMware to learn more about their go-to-market, product portfolio, approach to innovation, engineering talent, partner network and, of course, strong customer footprint.
